

Sustainability Memo

To: Marketing Department

From: Strategic Department (Executive Rotational Programme)

Date: August 2026

Subject: Sustainability Priorities for Marketing Communications

Purpose

This memo highlights the sustainability initiatives most relevant to the Marketing Department from the IHH Healthcare Sustainability Report 2024. Marketing plays a critical role in ensuring that all communications accurately reflect IHH's sustainability commitments while strengthening trust with patients, investors, employees, and the public.

IHH's Sustainability Strategy

IHH's sustainability framework is built around four pillars:

- Patients – Deliver safe, high-quality, patient-centred healthcare.
- People – Foster employee well-being, diversity, and talent development.
- Public – Improve community health and increase access to healthcare.
- Planet – Reduce environmental impact and progress toward Net Zero by 2050.

Key 2024 Highlights to Communicate

Marketing materials should consistently reflect verified sustainability achievements, including:

- Reduced greenhouse gas emissions intensity per patient day by 3.2% despite business growth.
- Reduced environmentally harmful anaesthetic gas usage by up to 55%.
- Expanded reductions of single-use plastics across multiple markets.
- Continued investments in renewable energy and climate resilience.
- Strengthened diversity, employee well-being, and community healthcare programmes.
- Continued commitment toward Net Zero by 2050.

Recommended Actions

Marketing should:

1. Develop sustainability messaging guidelines for all campaigns.
2. Incorporate sustainability achievements into corporate branding where relevant.
3. Coordinate with Sustainability and Corporate Communications before publishing ESG-related content.
4. Educate marketing staff on IHH's sustainability priorities and approved messaging.

Conclusion

Sustainability is a core part of IHH Healthcare's strategy rather than a standalone initiative. By communicating sustainability accurately and consistently, Marketing can reinforce IHH's reputation as a trusted healthcare provider while supporting its long-term "Care. For Good." commitment.
